Tobacco related resources on the Internet

Mark Hayman

The Internet is a valuable resource for obtaining tobacco related information. One article has briefly explored some of the sites that are available.¹ The following provides an outline of some of the major categories of tobacco related information currently available on the internet. The knowledge base relating to tobacco control is large and rapidly evolving. The Internet provides an invaluable resource for current information and a history of tobacco control programmes and activities from many parts of the world. Many of the listed sites provide extensive links to other related resources.

Lycos (<http://lycos.cs.cmu.edu/>) and Yahoo (<http://www.yahoo.com/>) are two search tools available on the internet that provide a fast, efficient way of searching for information on particular topics. Because the internet is constantly evolving, the links to resources provided below may change. Search tools are a reliable way of locating information and discovering new resources (such as new tobacco company advertisements).

Tobacco control resources

There are numerous tobacco control organisations providing chronological histories of their own tobacco control activities, local legislative developments, updates on current legislative efforts, and links to other tobacco resources on the internet. Several health organisations provide information on tobacco and health.

Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) (USA)
<http://www.setinc.com/ash/intro.html>

Provides a chronology of tobacco control developments and legislation within the United States, campaign information, access to the bimonthly ASH review, and more.

The militant anti-smokers' homepage

<http://www.mbnet.mb.ca/~cmckin/smoke.html>

Essentially just a collection of links to other tobacco related sites. Less impressive than it sounds.

NICNET

<http://hinet.medlib.arizona.edu/~pubhlth/tobac.htm>

Provides an excellent resources guide to the Arizona anti-smoking organisation.

Includes a link to the Internet Smoke Shop (<http://www.apk.net/smoke/>) which "will ship single cigars almost anywhere in the world with no minimum purchase requirements" and offer steeply discounted boxes and cigar of the month programs.

Fuji Publishing Group Cigar Page

<http://www.netins.net/showcase/fujicig/>

Provides a range of links to cigar distributors, smokers news groups, and other smoking related sites.

Japan Tobacco Products

Museum, and more. English Home Page at: <http://www.jtnet.ad.jp/WWW/Island/Welcome.html>

Jack Cannon (US), a computer expert and tobacco control advocate who monitors media coverage of tobacco issues, has also suggested the following sites:

<http://cigarworld.com> (Macanudo cigar company) – this is one of many cigar sites; it is alright but the links above through Fuji and The Tobacconist will take you to this and more. <http://www.jtnet.ad.jp/Island/Welcome.html> (Japan Tobacco Home Page) – mostly in Japanese – some of the photos are good but otherwise only valuable if there is a Japanese readership.

<http://woodtech.com/cigarettes/> (David Glenn Enterprises) – already included above as TaxFree cigarettes – duplicate.

The home page of a tobacco industry law firm

<http://www2.interpath.net/wcsr/> (Womble Carlyle Sandridge & Rice, PLLC)

Internal tobacco company documents

There have been various previously confidential company documents that have been made available publicly on the internet. These provide valuable insight and information on previously unconfirmed activities and programmes of some of the major US tobacco companies.

Brown and Williamson documents

<http://www.library.ucsf.edu/tobacco/bw.html> Available from University of California, San Francisco Library, Tobacco Control Archives. A large searchable collection of internal company documents revealing the company objectives and strategies over the last 30 years.

RJ Reynolds documents

<http://www.gate.net/~jcannon/tobacco.html>

Three internal memos indicating that the company deliberately targeted teenage smokers in marketing efforts, specifically tailored new brands for the youth market, and emphasised the need to establish brands for the 14–18 year old age group.

Tobacco Victims Association

<http://www.gate.net/~jcannon/tva-online.html>

Operates under the umbrella of STAT (Stop Teenage Addiction to Tobacco).

Philip Morris documents

<http://www.library.ucsf.edu/kr/subs/tobacco/pm.html>

These were presented in US Congressional hearings in August 1995 and detailed the company's research projects into the effects of smoking and the pharmacology of nicotine in children and college students.

Tobacco newsgroups

Discussion groups for smokers, non-smokers, cigar and pipe smokers and people trying to quit.

- news:alt.smokers
- news:alt.support.non-smokers
- news:alt.smokers.cigars
- news:alt.smokers.pipes

- <http://www.ncl.ac.uk:80/~nnpb/> (a resource for smokers trying to quit)

Miscellaneous*Shadowland*

<http://magi.com/~shadow/shadowland.html>

Movie lists

<http://www.cs.brown.edu/people/lsh/stories>. A list of smoking scenes in a large collection of US and other films. There is also a listing of a large collection of films made specifically about smoking.

Electronic published newspapers, magazines, and journals

Several of the above links provide collections of tobacco related news stories published in the media. There are also various major US and international newspapers and magazines published online that provide access to current news stories, including news relating to tobacco.

Jack Cannon has also provided the following sites:

- <http://www.ash.org/ash/> (US ASH) – already included in the first section above
- <http://www.bcm.tmc.edu/doc/> (Doctors Ought to Care (DOC))

- <http://www.wln.com/~washdoc/> (Washington DOC)
- <http://www.sirius.com/~anr> (Americans for Nonsmokers' Rights (ANR))
- <http://fox.nstn.ca/~ncth2/ccshccts.html> – NCTH Canada is already included; these are subdirectories
- <http://fox.nstn.ca/~ncth2/ncdo.html> – ditto
- <http://world.std.com/~batteryb/> (BADvertising Institute) – included under “tools for educators”
