There is no national licensing requirement that preempts local requirements.
ACT	State/Territory	Yes (~USD $407)	None	Not regulated at a national level. NSW has what is termed a negative licensing system whereby retailers register with the relevant local authority. Negative licensing systems allow business to operate without a licence but impose penalties for breaching regulations in contrast to positive licensing systems in operation in ACT, the NT, WA Tasmania, & SA, in which businesses require prior approval & adherence to regulations. Victoria & Queensland have no licensing system.	https://www.accesscanberra.act.gov.au/business-and-work/hospitality-liquor-and-gaming/tobacco-licences-and-smoking-areas

Brunei Darussalam	National	Yes (USD$ 1,770)	None	Following the introduction of high taxes, advertising restrictions & large graphic health warning for packaging, in 2014 the tobacco industry ceased sales in Brunei, citing excessive regulations. The result of this is that in practice there are no tobacco retailers in Brunei. Tobacco products may be bought into the country by private citizens.	https://www.tobaccocontrollaws.org/legislation/brunei-darussalam/sales-restrictions Local informant
China	National	Yes	Sales ban within 100m of the entrance of kindergartens or primary or secondary schools	The production, sale, & regulation of tobacco is controlled by the government. The China National Tobacco Corporation (CNTC) controls the business side, & the State Tobacco Monopoly Administration (STMA) is the regulatory arm of the industry. The Tobacco Monopoly Board (TMB) implements & enforces tobacco regulations.	https://www.tobaccocontrollaws.org/legislation/country/china/atp-sales-restrictions Wang, L., Lu, B., Wewers, M.
